What makes our microfiber cleaning system so successful?

The Paris MicroGuard Cleaning System combines the best products with our full service cleaning and training programs to help give our customers a best in class cleaning program.

Analysis and Inventory

- A Paris Representative will visit your facility and work with your team to provide a free analysis and recommendation on a customized microfiber program to best fit your needs.
- The Paris inventory management system will ensure that you never run out of microfiber products.

Serving Your Account

- Your Paris Service Representative will deliver the clean microfiber products to your facility in storage carts designed to help prevent contamination. Each cart is lined with plastic and closed with a secure lid for transport to your facility.
- After the microfiber products are used by your staff, the soiled product is placed in plastic lined storage carts that are designated specifically for soiled product at your facility.
- Soiled product is picked up by your Service Representative each week after delivering your clean product.
- Your Paris Service Representative will meet with you each week to review your needs and make any necessary adjustments to your account. We continually adjust your program to meet your changing needs, which allows you to control your costs.

The Cleaning Process

- When the soiled microfiber products arrive at our processing facility, they are counted and sorted by product type for proper cleaning.
- Each Customer's product is processed separately using customized wash formulas designed for optimum cleanliness.
- The microfiber products are then dried at specific temperatures in high capacity dryers to help eliminate remaining bacteria.
- Each product is individually inspected, packaged and placed in plastic bags to prevent contamination while being transported back to your facility.
- All products are put in bundles of ten (10) and placed in plastic bags in the following quantities for your convenience.
